HISTORICAL SKETCH

When the Province of Maine was separated from Massachusetts and became an independent state, it was larger than all the rest of New England, and contained a population of three hundred thousand souls. This population, scattered over so wide a territory, needed to be provided with pastors and teachers; and within the bounds of the entire state Bowdoin College was the only institution existing, above the grade of academy. But the college was doing her work as a classical institution and not specially for the training of the ministry. The godly men and women of the churches who had become anxiously interested in the problem, saw that the college must be supplemented by a school of theology. They could not, for their ministers, look back to their mother state, for Andover, then only recently established, could not fill the demand of its own field. Yale and East Windsor seminaries were not yet projected. Maine must provide for herself. It was out of this necessity that Bangor Seminary arose.

As early as 1810 an association had been formed in Portland, called "The Society for Promoting Theological Education." It was designed to aid young men in preparing for the gospel ministry, with a view principally to the supply of the newly-settled parts of Maine. This was one of the earliest education societies in the United States. It was incorporated in 1812, and vigorous measures were taken to carry into effect the principal object of the society.

After much thought and a somewhat extended correspondence, not only in this country but in England, it was concluded that this object could not be attained without the establishment of a literary and theological institution. Accordingly a committee was appointed by the directors of the society, with instructions to found and locate the proposed Seminary. Through the efforts of this committee a charter was obtained from the Legislature of Massachusetts, which directed "That there be and hereby is established in the County of Hancock a Literary Seminary by the name of the Maine Charity School, for the purpose of promoting religion and morality, and for the education of youth in such languages and in such of the liberal arts and sciences as the Trustees thereof shall from time to time judge the most useful and expedient for the purposes of said Seminary." This instrument was dated February 24, 1814. By its provisions the Trustees were authorized to establish not only a Theological Seminary, but an English or Classical School, a Teachers' Seminary, or even a College.

The persons designated in the charter as the first board of Trustees were the Revs. John Sawyer, Kiah Bayley, Eliphalet Gillet, William Jenks, Mighill Blood, Asa Lyman, David Thurston, Harvey Loomis, Hon. Ammi R. Mitchell and Samuel E. Dutton, Esq. The first meeting of this body appears to have been held in Montville, Waldo County, at the house of Major Samuel Moor, in May, 1814. Several new members were added; and Rev. Edward Payson, of Portland, was elected President; Rev. Eliphalet Gillet, of Hallowell, Vice-President; Rev. Kiah Bayley, of Newcastle, Secretary; and Samuel E. Dutton, Esq., of Bangor, Treasurer.

The Seminary was founded on the plan of the English Dissenting Institutions. It was intended chiefly for those who, in consideration of their age or other circumstances, must enter the ministry, if at all, without a collegiate education. The prescribed course of study was literary and classical, as well as theological, and would occupy four years. The studies of the first two years were to be chiefly classical; those of the last two years were professional, including systematic and pastoral theology, ecclesiastical history, and homiletics. This arrangement lasted for several years. But serious practical difficulties arose; and after repeated modifications and re-organizations, it was abandoned in 1827, and the literary and classical course was developed into a separate preparatory school. Since that time the Seminary has devoted itself to the regular theological curriculum of three years.

The founders of the proposed institution might have located it in the western and more thickly settled part of Maine; but in the spirit and with the energy of their original conception they determined to plant it in the midst of the sparsely populated territory whose needs it was specially intended to supply. Accordingly, a temporary arrangement was effected between them and the Trustees of Hampden Academy; and the Seminary was opened at Hampden in October, 1816.

During the first year the new school was under the charge of Mr. Jehudi Ashmun (Univ. of Vt., 1816), afterwards the eminent Colonial Agent in Liberia. In June, 1817, it was more completely organized and the several departments of instruction were filled. Mr. Ashmun was retained as Professor of Classical Literature, Rev. Abijah Wines (Dartmouth, 1794) was appointed to the chair of Theology, and Mr. Ebenezer Cheever (Bowdoin, 1817) was selected as preceptor of the Preparatory School. Two years later Mr. Ashmun was succeeded by Rev. Bancroft Fowler (Yale, 1796), and Mr. Wines by Rev. John Smith (Dartmouth, 1794). These men all entered upon their duties with ability and vigor. They made the beginnings; and may in a true sense be called the founders of the future institution. Mr. Ashmun came direct from college, young, ardent, sensitive, conscientious and devout. He did faithful work, but at the end of three years left it for another enterprise which was still nearer to his heart. The remainder of his brief life was spent in founding a colony in Liberia; whence he returned to New Haven in 1828 to die at the early age of thirty-four. Dr. Wines was already a man of mature years and pastoral experience. He is described as large, erect, of commanding presence, an indefatigable worker, a bold and earnest preacher, and much beloved as a pastor. Before coming to the seminary he had experienced a serious nervous disorder; and it may have been a temporary recurrence of this which led him to resign his chair. He took a pastorate in Deer Isle, and a few years later died at the McLean asylum in Charlestown, Mass. His successor in the department of theology, Dr. Smith, was also a Massachusetts man, a classmate, and of the same age. He is spoken of as an admirable instructor, a clear and forcible thinker, logical and solid. He made a deep and lasting impression on his classes. After twelve years of faithful and self-sacrificing labor he died in office. Professor Baucroft Fowler was a Yale man, and like Drs. Smith and Wines, was a pupil of Dr. Emmons. He brought to the chair of Sacred Literature not only an acute mind and large scholarship, but also a fine classical taste and a wide acquaintance with belles lettres. He was a christian gentleman, much esteemed by his pupils, and devoted to the interests of the Seminary. After leaving Bangor, Professor Fowler established a school for young ladies in West Brookfield, Mass., and taught there successfully for some years; then spent fifteen years in pastoral work, and finally retired to Stockbridge, Mass., where the last decade of his life was passed amid his books and his friends, and where he died at the ripe age of more than fourscore.

These names are worthy of honorable mention. Doubtless these earliest teachers in the Seminary did more both directly and indirectly to shape its development and assure its future than any and all other influences of their time.

It does not appear that the Seminary owned any buildings or lands in Hampden. The students boarded and studied in private families, and recited at the Academy. But in 1819, a lot of land, containing about seven acres, favorably situated in Bangor, was given to the Seminary by the late Isaac Davenport, Esq., of Milton, Mass. In the autumn of that year the institution was removed from Hampden to Bangor, and now occupies the beautiful grounds included in Mr. Davenport's generous gift.

Bangor, which is now the third city in size in the state, with a population of about twenty-two thousand, was then a small place, containing only about twelve hundred inhabitants. There was no meeting-house in the town. The people were blessed with an excellent minister, the Rev. Harvey Loomis, who preached first in a hall over a store at City Point, and later in what came to be known as the Old Court-house. It was in this court-house that the students were at first accustomed to meet their teachers for literary and religious exercises. Later one or two other buildings were rented for the purpose; one of which stood on the corner of Main and Water streets, the site now occupied by the Masonic Hall.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

The first building erected for the Seminary in Bangor was a Chapel. It was built in 1823, and stood on the south side of Hammond street, in the grounds now belonging to the house of the late Vice-President Hamlin. It was occupied by the preparatory school, and for recitations and worship by the theological students. It was a great convenience to the infant Seminary; but after several years of usefulness it was destroyed by fire.

The next building erected was called the Commons House, and was finished in 1827. It was intended as a boarding-house for students, and also to furnish them with rooms. It continued to be so occupied for about ten years, until the completion of the dormitory, when it was remodeled into a double dwelling-house. It is the building now numbered 331 and 333 Hammond street, and is occupied by two of the professors and their families.

The dormitory was built in 1837, from funds raised by the General Conference. It has been much improved since, the grounds around it graded, and the gravel paths relaid in concrete. In the summer of 1877 the interior was reconstructed and thoroughly refitted.

The present Commons Hall was erected later. It is occupied by the students' boarding-club, and by the matron and the superintendent of buildings and grounds. The south wing of this building originally contained the library, which is now more safely housed in the chapel. A third dwelling-house on Union street, opposite the Seminary enclosure, was added by purchase to the number of residences for the professors; in 1855 a fourth was erected on the grounds, corner of Union and Pond streets, and in 1893 a fifth, fronting on Hammond street.

The chapel was dedicated in 1859. The Seminary is indebted for it to the long-continued and self-sacrificing exertions of the Ladies' Corban Society of Bangor. In addition to the chapel proper it contains lecture-rooms, the reading-room, a cabinet of curiosities from missionary lands, and the library.

The Library consisted at first of the few volumes occasionally contributed by friends. The Seminary had been in active operation for some fifteen years before any money was received for the purchase of books; and more than forty years before the generous fund established by the late Ichabod Washburn, Esq., of Worcester, Mass., gave the library the nucleus of a working capital. Two liberal friends of the institution have recently added a thousand dollars each, and another, three hundred; and the income of the fund thus constituted is devoted to obtaining the latest and best works. By careful nurture the library has thus grown to a valuable collection, numbering at present more than twenty-two thousand volumes. It is now accommodated in the lower hall of the Chapel.

In the rear of the chapel stands the gymnasium, an attractive and substantial structure of brick. It was completed in 1895, and is well equipped with modern apparatus.

It is due to the wide constituency of the Seminary that some statement should be added as to its financial support. Its work began without endowment. It lived on the gifts of its friends. The first ever received should have honorable mention; it was from the ladies of the church in Newcastle, Me., the sum of one hundred and sixty dollars collected and forwarded by the wife of the pastor, Rev. Kiah Bayley, the first Secretary of the Board of Trustees. Mrs. Bayley was deeply interested in the new institution, and before her death at the age of ninety she had collected and sent to its treasury nearly two thousand dollars. Other donations and subscriptions came in not only from citizens of Maine, but from friends in other states, even as far south as Georgia. It is interesting to know that the largest gift in Washington, D. C., was received from John Quincy Adams, then Secretary of State, and later President. In 1835 a subscription of one hundred thousand dollars was started, and met with a generous response. "One gentleman in Bangor subscribed between sixteen and seventeen thousand dollars; another, seven thousand; another, four thousand; several, two thousand; and many men in Bangor, Portland and other places, subscribed a thousand each." Within six months the whole was pledged. But the great panic of 1837 so crippled the finances of the country that not more than a third of the amount was ever realized. In 1847 the chair occupied by Professor Shepard was endowed by a subscription mostly made up in Bangor, and largely by the liberality and the exertions of the late George W. Pickering; this enabled the professor to resist the urgent calls of churches in Brooklyn and New York, and, as Dr. Pond says, "saved the Seminary." In 1849 another effort raised thirty-four thousand dollars toward the endowment of the other two professorships. Generous bequests, amounting to fifteen thousand dollars, came from the Waldo family of Worcester, Mass., and later the sum of forty thousand from the Washburn family of the same place. Other liberal donations and legacies were, five thousand dollars from William E. Dodge, of New York; ten thousand from Dr. Jacob Hayes, of Charlestown, Mass.; thirteen thousand from Messrs. Hiram and William Fogg, of New York; twenty-five thousand from Richard P. Buck, of Brooklyn. Within the past thirty years are to be gratefully recorded gifts from Robert McGaw, of Merrimac, N. H., five thousand; Mrs. A. S. Hill, of Paris, Me., twenty-eight hundred; T. S. Wentworth and Benj. Sewall, of Boston, each five thousand; Charles Clapp and T. M. Reed, of Bath, Me., in memory of Dea. Andrew Reed, each three thousand; more recently, bequests of eight thousand eight hundred from the estate of Charles Dummer, of Hallowell; and of twenty-five thousand (making thirty thousand in all) from Henry Winkley, of Philadelphia. The last decade has added such valuable gifts as eleven thousand from Elias Bond, D. D., of Kohala, Hawaii, class of '40, ten thousand from H. H. Fogg of Bangor, six thousand from B. B. Thatcher of Bangor, five thousand each from Mrs. Ann J. Walker of Portland, Dr. R. W. Wood of Jamaica Plain, Mass., Thomas Harwood of Bath, Me., and John F. Colby of Bangor, four thousand from Thomas C. Kennedy of Newcastle, and fifteen hundred from Rev. Charles B. Smith of Medford, Mass., class of '44. Two bequests have been recently announced; five thousand from Mrs. Richard P. Buck of Brooklyn, and twenty-five thousand from Joseph Ricker of Portland. The late Rev. Dr. George W. Field, of Bangor, an alumnus of both Bowdoin College and the Seminary, gave a scholarship of one thousand to the Seminary, and two others of two thousand each to the College in aid of graduates of the Seminary who continue their studies at the College. The late Nehemiah Kittredge, of Bangor, established a loan fund of two thousand dollars, which has proved a benefit to the students. Recent donors of a thousand dollars or more have been Dea.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

S. Adams, of Castine; Mrs. Julia A. Stanley, of Hallowell; Mrs. Caroline W. Brooks, of Portland; Mrs. Narcissa Sewall Bourne, of Kennebunk; and Messrs. W. W. Thomas, of Portland, John Patten, of Bath, Hon. James W. Bradbury of Augusta, R. W. Shapleigh, and Rev. Henry S. Loring, class of '46. It is due to these friends who have made such efforts in behalf of our beloved institution, that they should be held in honorable memory. And it is due to very many others, who have not been able to give in such amounts, but whose self-sacrifice has doubtless been as great, that they also should be esteemed as highly in love for their works' sake. The Seminary would thus publicly record her gratitude to them one and all. The trust thus committed to her is held sacred; and she may point with pardonable pride to the use she has made of it in training hundreds of pastors and missionaries for service in the Kingdom of Christ.

It should be added that many of the donations recorded above were given with special designation to special objects, as, for the library, for the erection of buildings, for scholarships, and for the students' aid funds, which last are large and liberal. The permanent endowment has not increased in like proportion, and its income, though carefully and economically administered, is not yet sufficient to meet the urgent needs of the institution. It is to be hoped that the Seminary will at no distant day be put upon a broader financial basis by the generosity of its friends; for only so can it meet the increasing requirements of a thorough education, and satisfy the reasonable demands of the churches.

From the date of its charter Bangor Seminary has now been in existence eighty-seven years. During that time it has sent out into the world seventy-nine theological classes, comprising eight hundred graduates, together with two hundred and fifty others who studied for one or more years, but did not complete their course. These men have made a faithful and useful body of workers. The majority of them are still living, and are at their posts all over the land or on foreign shores, in pulpits of many denominations and of every grade of eminence.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

The foregoing sketch has been compiled in part from original sources, and in part from the Address delivered by Dr. Pond at the semi-centennial of the Seminary in 1870. The lists which follow, of the Trustees, Faculty and Alumni, were originally prepared chiefly from blanks sent out from the Seminary. The records of the past ten years have been added from published statistics and from private correspondence. In many cases, especially in the earlier classes, most of whose members had long since deceased, the blanks were never returned, and the desired information was not always obtainable from other sources. Some errors and omissions will therefore be likely to appear. We acknowledge with thanks the kindness of many alumni and friends who have sent us needed corrections and missing data, and we earnestly request a continuance of like favors from all who have the facts at hand, or can put us in the way of obtaining them.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The dates affixed to names of trustees and professors, denote the term of service. A date following the name of a college or other institution signifies the graduation of the student at that place and time; mention of an institution without date signifies that the course was not completed, or that the editors were not able to ascertain the fact. In the record of the alumni it may be assumed that each person is engaged in regular ministerial work, unless otherwise stated. Places of settlement are given, but not usually the church or denomination, except where a change is noted from one denomination to another. As the work of the minister is practically the same whether installed or not, and the information has been by no means uniform or clear, no attempt has been made to preserve a distinction between "pastor" and "acting pastor"—p. and a. p. The abbreviation "res. lic." denotes that the person was a resident licentiate at the time specified. The names of those who have taken a partial course without graduating are appended to the classes with which they studied. No account is made of years uncompleted; the figure attached to each name denotes the number of full years such student was connected with the Seminary.
